"My goal was to bring back a classically glamorous look and translate it into modern, versatile styles for work, travel, and play," says Orange County native Jenny Han of her eponymous three-year-old line. And Han's fall collection—feminine dropwaist dresses, ruffle-trimmed tops, and tie-neck sweaters—is strikingly on the mark. Vintagey detailing (swing hemlines, pintuck pleating) keeps shifts and trapeze tops looking lushly romantic, and the breezy shapes ensure infinite wearability. An avid traveler, the 35-year-old designer makes a point of visiting fabric stores wherever she goes. "In Asia, I love poring over the different lace trims, buttons, and beads," she says. "The possibilities are endless—and so inspiring: They make me want to run home and get to work!"
